

Global Network Initiative
Protecting and Advancing Freedom of Expression and Privacy in Information and Communications Technologies

Forum
Paris, France: December 4th 6pm – 8pm

You are invited to an evening forum marking the introduction of the new Global Network Initiative on freedom of expression and privacy:

Thursday December 4th
6pm – 8pm (Drinks served from 5.30pm)
Cathedral space of the Palais de Chaillot
Paris, France

Join us for a round table discussion about how the Global Network Initiative intends to address the complex and constantly evolving human rights challenges and opportunities presented by information and communications technologies. Speakers will include:

- Calvert
- Center for Democracy and Technology
- Committee to Protect Journalists
- Google
- Human Rights First
- Microsoft
- Yahoo!

The Forum will be moderated by the Berkman Center for Internet & Society, who will draw out the participants' varied perspectives, followed by an open discussion with the audience.

The forum is taking place in conjunction with the International Seminar on Business and Human Rights, in celebration of the 60th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Admission to the forum is free. Please RSVP to the Global Network Initiative via email: info@globalnetworkinitiative.org (subject line "Paris"). We will send more details, including maps and location, to those who RSVP.

- For more information about the Global Network Initiative see: www.globalnetworkinitiative.org
- For more information about the International Seminar on Business and Human Rights see: www.anniversaryseminar.org